Dear Dean Adamson,

Attached you will find my completed GSU Service/Education Center for Hellenic Studies Review Survey. In addition to giving a general report on its history as well as its faculty, the survey addresses the overall goals and objectives of the Center. I am pleased to note that all four of the initial major goals and objectives for the Center have been met. These goals include regular offerings in Modern Greek Language for the past four consecutive years, the establishment of a lecture series, significant cultural programming and most importantly the establishment of a formal faculty/exchange program between Georgia State University and Aristotle University in Thessaloniki, Greece. The survey also identifies three new goals and objectives the Center has set.

The survey has given me the valuable opportunity to reflect upon and discuss both the major institutional, administrative and financial resources available to the Center as well as those identified constraints that interfere with achieving its goals and objectives. These resources and constraints are detailed in the survey.

The survey also includes a detailed report of all the Center’s activities over the past five years. As you are well aware, the creation of the Center was not without its challenges. I hope that you will agree with me that despite its rocky start, the Center is progressing well, especially given the constraints of its resources. I again wish to thank you for all your invaluable support, both in the initial stages of the Center’s growth as well as your enthusiasm for its mission, its ongoing activities and its plans for the future. I look forward to many more exciting accomplishments in the future!

Sincerely,
